Following a brave battle with the elements over the north Atlantic, the Graf Zeppelin was approaching the coast of Europe today on its flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to Friedrichshafen.

The dirigible was averaging close to eighty miles an hour. Officials of the Hamburg-American line believed a new record for the Atlantic crossing would be established.

Ralph Heinzen, manager of the Paris bureau of the United Press, radioed an account of the Graf's battle with Atlantic storms, from the liner America, on which Heinzen was returning to France from the United States.

To avoid the storms, Capt. Lehmann maneuvered the Graf far south of the southern course hitherto followed.

ABOARD S. S. AMERICA AT SEA, Sept. 3.—The Graf Zeppelin is riding a gale toward Friedrichshafen after being forced off her course by a fifty-mile wind.

Radio messages received by the America from the dirigible said Capt. Ernest Lehmann had been forced to swing to the south of the Azores after reaching a point slightly northeast of the islands.

Throughout Monday, Lehmann reported, the Graf's radio was kept silent by storms and thundershowers. After striking the storm area, the dirigible swung to the south of the Azores and again straightened out for Europe.

At midnight Greenwich mean time (7 p. m. EST) Lehmann reported his position as latitude 35.22 north longitude 26.43 west, about 200 miles south and slightly west of the Azores. Two hours later the dirigible was at latitude 35.53 north longitude 24 west.

Presuming the Graf Zeppelin continues on a line for Gibraltar, she reasonably could be expected to be off the European coast early today.

It was at 10:45 p. m. G.M.T. yesterday (5:45 p. m. Monday E.S.T.) that Lehmann radioed his intention to circle back and go around the Azores.

It was apparent to those aboard the America that the Zeppelin was having difficulty making headway against the storm. Even this big liner was badly shaken by the wind and waves and obviously the situation would have been much worse on a lighter-than-air craft.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—The Hamburg American Line, agents for the Graf Zeppelin, announced the Graf's position at 9 a. m. Central European time (3 a. m. E.S.T.) to be latitude 37:50 N., longitude 15:30 W. This would place the dirigible about 200 miles southwest of Lisbon.

THREE GIRLS REPORT ATTACK BY YOUTHS

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 3.—Officials of Logan and Union Counties today were expected to begin a joint investigation of an attack, alleged to have been made Sunday night on three young girls by three Columbus boys.

According to the girls, who walked into Marysville near midnight, the attack occurred near East Liberty, Logan County. Two of the girls gave Columbus addresses believed to be fictitious, and one gave Mt. Vernon, O., as her home.

The girls met the boys at Buckeye Lake early Sunday, they told Marshall George Singer of Marysville, and rode with them to Bellefontaine and back to East Liberty where the attack occurred. The girls refused to file charges against the boys.

TWO DIE FROM POISON BOOZE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 3.—Poison liquor was blamed today for the death of two persons here and the illness of three others.

The dead are Harold Beckner, 35, and Mike Yensco, 50. Beckner died in a driveway after apparently suffering with convulsions which deputy sheriffs said were caused by bad liquor.

Gene Van Gorder, 19, Beckner's companion, is in a hospital. It was reported her condition is only fair. Yensco died and John Yohman, 25, of Brookfield, Pa., and his wife, Mrs. Mary Yohman, became very ill after drinking liquor together.

TEN JURORS SEATED AS GASTONIA TRIAL ENTERS EIGHTH DAY

Believe Murder Case
Jury Box Will Be Full Tuesday

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 3.—Belief that a jury would be reached today was expressed on all sides as the trial of sixteen Gastonia textile workers on murder charges went into its eighth day.

More than 300 veniremen from the regular and two special panels ordered have been examined and from this number ten jurors selected.

S. L. Caldwell, a young farmer, He sits in the jury box twirling his thumbs. A timid man, he barely gazes at the spectators. He was one of the two who yesterday refused to remove his coat despite the heat.

J. O. McCoy, steel plant employee, was approved. He tips back his chair, yawns many times a day and places his hands behind his head as he gazes at veniremen.

Zed Morris, Jr., another farmer, is the dapper jurymen. He is a bridegroom of three months.

J. G. Campbell, a newspaper vendor, who wears a red rosebud pinned on his necktie, is the most alert of the jurors.

C. W. Martin, a carpenter, has spent many hours examining the new trappings of the luxurious county court house. He has shown little interest in examinations of other veniremen.

J. W. Hicks, a cotton mill worker, appears to be thinking of the job he left to take up jury service. He is interested, only mildly, in his companions in the box.

A. F. Parker, grocery clerk, is the handsomest man on the jury. He is a member of the "True Light" religious cult which believes the world will end in 1933.

G. L. Benson, a railway mail clerk, wears a white patch over his eye to cover discoloring. He was hit by a baseball, he says.

Conrad G. Torrence, 24, has spent twelve of these years in a textile mill. He nodded in his chair less than an hour after he had been selected for jury duty.

G. L. Shufford, 42, is the oldest man on the jury. He is a railway shop employee, and has a daughter employed in a hosiery mill.

The last three were approved yesterday. All ten are men of modest means but withal well dressed.

Resolutions Ready For Introduction On Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Democrats will lay down three resolutions aimed at the Republican tariff bill as soon as the senate reconvenes tomorrow from a three month summer recess.

The first, the Thomas resolution, will seek to eliminate all of the bill save the increased agricultural rates; the second will call upon the Republicans to reveal the embarrassing division in their own ranks encountered while they were framing the bill in the senate finance committee, and the third will demand a compilation of the dollars represented by the various interests who appeared before the committee in behalf of higher industrial tariff duties.

With these three resolutions, the opposition will formally open the long awaited contest which is expected to last for months, and upon the fate of the first resolution may depend the whole tariff issue.

Nearly all the ninety-four seated senators were on hand today ready for the opening. Chairman Smoot of the finance committee in charge of the bill announced he would not expect debate to start tomorrow but would demand the senate get down to business without fail Thursday.

In view of resolutions being proposed, it seems likely the chemical debate may not begin for some time. A free-for-all contest is expected immediately over the Thomas resolution, with the farm bloc and Democrats working against the general industrial increases and for the farm increases while the Republicans defend the measure as it stands.

The other two resolutions are not as important but they may influence the ensuing debate. The Republicans were closely divided in committee on many of the rate charges, the Reed-Watson-Bingham vacation splitting with a Smoot-Edge group. Many of the rates were adopted by 6 to 5 margins. The votes have never been made public and it was understood at the time that the losing group would defend the majority votes when the bill came to the floor.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 3.—For the second consecutive year, Lou Meyer of California is the champion American automobile racing driver. He won yesterday's 200-mile A. A. race on the Altoona speedway, his third straight victory here.

Flashing to the front when Cliff Bergere, Hollywood, Calif., was forced out of the race by engine trouble, Meyer finished first in 1 hour, 45 minutes, 38.3 seconds.

Bergere, who had set the pace from the start until the 17th lap, looked like a certain winner when his motor burned out.

Fred Frame, Los Angeles was second and Myron Stevens, third.

Thirteen cars started. Two of the cars crashed into the rail while jockeying for positions before the starter signaled the start. No damage resulted. A crowd estimated at 40,000 saw the race.

WILLIAM F. Zwick, 40, Lima, died from injuries received when a Cleveland-St. Louis Nickel Plate train, struck his automobile here.

His wife and three children suffered minor injuries.

SWIMMER DROWNS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Carl Harrison, 29, Cleveland, bathing at Lake Stafford, near Ravenna, stepped into water beyond his depth and was drowned.

Daniel Ambrose, 11, Cleveland, sustained a possible fractured skull yesterday when he was struck at Brookside Park pool here by his brother as the latter dived into the pool.

HOBBO PARTY FORMED

"Dapper Dan" O'Brien Leads Bums' Rebellion;
Want Life, Leisure And National Jester

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Up in Union Square at the base of the statues of Washington and Lafayette, a new political party rose out of the heat and dust last night, sponsored by "Dapper Dan" O'Brien, king of the hoboes.

From an historic rostrum, Dapper Dan announced the new party was conceived in hunger and dedicated to the proposition that both Democrats and Republicans would bear watching. He proposes to have them watch each other while the hobo party goes marching on.

Dapper Dan's first objective is to be elected mayor of New York, and last night many were the proselytes he made from the communists and the workers' party by coming out flatly for freedom of the subways—both as a means of transportation and as bedrooms.

"We have freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of the seas," said Dapper Dan, his voice liquid with emotion. "Why not freedom of the subways? Down with the five cent fare. Down with all fares."

"For the first time in history the great hobo race and creed is united under a single party banner. From hence on, there can be no question; the great parties of America are the hobo party, the Democratic party and the Republican party. That is as it should be—a Democrat to watch a Republican and a Republican to watch a Democrat."

Briefly stated, Dapper Dan's platform is designed to appeal to that section of society that objects to working for a living. It includes:

A hotel with 50,000 free rooms.

A free college for hoboes.

Suppression of all sopranos on the radio.

Breakfast in bed.

Compulsory trips to Coney Island.

Prohibition of headaches.

Immediate dismissal of all railroad detectives.

Dapper Dan demonstrated his ability to reason from cause to effect when he put forward his plan for abolishing crime.

"Empty stomachs," he said, "make full falls. Fill up people's stomachs and you'll empty the jails."

Life, leisure and the pursuit of happiness are not the only items in Dapper Dan's Utopian project. He proposes to keep a nation laughing by the appointment of an American jester.

"A good man for the job," said Dapper Dan, "would be Al Jolson."

DISCOVERY OF WOMAN'S BODY MAY PRESENT "PERFECT CRIME"

MORRIS, Ill., Sept. 3.—A fantastic theory of a "perfect crime" involving murder by a non-traceable poison or gas and the preservation of the body for a month by refrigeration was reconstructed by detectives here today in the investigation of the mysterious death of a woman, whose nude body, carefully sewed in a burlap bag, was found beside a highway near here yesterday.

Attempted solution of the mystery called in all the science of criminology, psychology and medicine. The theory of murder, founded on only the slightest clues, was weird in every aspect and depicted the murderer as one who for weeks had hidden the body of his victim, planning and then laying aside first one and then another plan for its disposal, all the while wracked by the evidence of his crime.

The body was unidentified, the woman's age was estimated at 45, Mrs. Joseph Hunt, Detroit, a tourist, found the body.

Two Morris physicians, Drs. H. M. Ferguson and W. G. Sachse, conducted post mortem examinations and reported that they were able to find no evidence of murder although they explained that microscopic analysis of the vital organs would be necessary to establish the fact that the woman died a natural death.

The physicians dissipated the first theory of police that the body was a cadaver intended for medical school dissection. They said there was no trace of any preservative and that the condition of the flesh and skin indicated that the body had been kept in a refrigerated room.

Examination set the time of the woman's death at least a month or possibly six weeks ago.

Coroner T. A. Hognanson pointed out that the body probably was placed in the burlap sack soon after death, before rigor mortis set in. He said it would have been impossible to have placed the body in the sitting posture in which it was found unless it was done immediately.

The burlap bag was new and clean and the top of it was secured by wire. On the sack lay a large flat stone weighing forty pounds.

Clay on the woman's body conflicted with the physicians' statement but they explained that it was possible the murderer first decided to bury the body, then hastily changed plans, dug it up and placed it in the sack before the onset of rigor mortis.

The body weighs about 110 pounds, is five feet, three inches tall and the gray hair never had been bobbed. Two front teeth were filled with gold.

DIPHTHERIA BEING BARRED FROM OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—No child in Ohio need have diphtheria, the state department of health assures.

Since 1922 when prevention work against diphtheria started in Ohio a half million persons have been immunized. Of these there has been no death reported from the disease and no serious results from the immunization process, officials state.

The death toll from diphtheria dropped from 830 in 1922 to 369 for last year.

WOMAN APPOINTED

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Ohio is to have a woman fire fighter.

Governor Cooper has named Mrs. Adah Dodd Poline of Dayton as an assistant state fire marshal.

She will take office Tuesday on a statewide fire prevention assignment. Her work will be principally before school children.

AUTOISTS MUST STOP NOW FOR SCHOOL BUSES

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Another new law for automobile drivers became operative today with the opening of public schools throughout the state.

The law is the Forney act, requiring automobile drivers to bring their cars to a complete stop upon approaching school buses taking on or discharging passengers outside city limits.

The law provides specifically that cars, approaching either the front or rear of a school bus under these conditions shall be stopped not less than ten feet from the bus and shall remain stationary until the children have entered or been alighted and reached the side of the road or street.

Provision is also made that buses shall be marked both front and rear with the words "School bus" in plain lettering, readable in daylight at a distance of at least 200 feet away.

AIR EXPLORER WEDS STAGE STAR

Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, daring Australian aviator and explorer, who flew over "the top of the world" in 1928 and who circled the globe with Dr. Hugo Eckener on the Graf Zeppelin, snapped with his bride, the former Miss Suzanne Bennett, one-time Broadway stage star, shortly after their marriage at Cleveland. The two were attending the air races at the Ohio metropolis and were wed by a justice of the peace.

ANXIETY FELT FOR MISSING AIR RACE PILOT

Major John Woods Not
Seen Since Starting
Derby

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Grave anxiety was felt here today for Maj. John P. Wood, veteran pilot who was still missing twenty-nine hours after he took off from Los Angeles for Cleveland in the men's nonstop derby of the national air races.

The veteran pilot had taken off once before but had returned to the starting point when his Lockheed monoplane developed motor trouble. Three other contestants completed the flight for a share of the 10,000 prize.

With Maj. Wood was Russell Ward, a mechanic.

Wood's course would have taken him over mountains, desert and plains, where storms have been brewing for a week.

Three other fliers made the dash before Maj. Wood took off. Lee Schoenhair was the first to complete the hop in the remarkably fast time of thirteen hours, fifty-four minutes and ten seconds.

Capt. Roscoe Turner, second nonstop derbyist, was disqualified for arriving here after 6 p. m. Henry J. Brown, air mail flyer, made the fastest time for the flight, thirteen hours, fifteen minutes and seven seconds.

Col. Arthur Goebel, Dole flight winner, withdrew from the race at the last minute because of unfavorable weather conditions. Major Wood took off despite the warnings.

SURVEY INDICATES 155 LOST LIVES OVER DOUBLE HOLIDAY

By United Press

Death went hand in hand with millions of pleasure seekers who took advantage of the double holiday over Labor Day and sought refuge from the heat on beaches and country highways.

A nationwide United Press survey showed that at least 155 persons lost their lives when the nation laid aside business and went looking for pleasure.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 3.—Five persons were dead and more than a score were recovering from injuries today as the result of holiday traffic accidents.

The dead are: Edward Lynch, 20, Mrs. Leola Lynch, 23, Nicholas Waters, 29, Melvina Williams, 23, and Paul L. Cowell, 23, all of Toledo.

A childhood romance came to a tragic end yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Lynch, who were married less

OH CAPTAIN! HOW COULD YOU!

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Captain D. H. Young, airplane pilot, took another captain up for a spin yesterday at Norton Field. During a whip-stall, Young's safety belt became unfastened and he fell out of the plane.

The captain's parachute opened all right. But the other captain was left alone up in the air—1000 feet up to be precise. He was riding in the forward cockpit. He had been on several flights before but never alone. Out of sheer necessity, however, he grabbed the dual controls and carried on. He made a safe landing at Port Columbus.

The second captain's name was withheld for army reasons.

LABOR UNION WANTS FIVE-DAY WEEK

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 3.—Establishment of a five-day week for all workers, higher wages, and "more humane and tolerable conditions of employment," is the aim of the American Federation of Labor, according to President William Green.

In a Labor Day speech here last night, a Green promised that the power and influence of his organization would be thrown vigorously behind such a movement.

Scanning the outlook for labor, Green said the most pressing problems confronting it are unemployment, discrimination against workers forty or forty-five years of age, and displacement of men by machinery.

It was reported today that next year's show would be held at Chicago. Although Cleveland has already extended its invitation for the national air races of 1930, it was pointed out that it is the carnival spirit of the show, and the widespread interest in aviation and for that reason the event would be shifted to another locality.

Dr. Eckener was accorded the mightiest ovation ever bestowed upon any individual in Cleveland since the first visit here of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh two years ago. When the famous German pilot of the globe girdling Graf Zeppelin, in front of the grand stand of 100,000 greeted him with the chautauqua salute, made famous in the days of Theodore Roosevelt, tens of thousands of handkerchiefs waving him greeting.

Eckener left the airport late in the afternoon in the Goodyear baby blimp, Defender, for Akron. Lindbergh and a host of other notables

PHILIPPINES FLOODED WHEN HIT BY STORM

Islands Devastated; Torrential Rain Follows Wind.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 3.—A hurricane of typhoon proportions swept over the Philippine Islands today sinking the steamer Mayon and flooding several provinces.

The Mayon sank off Pasacac, near the Regay Gulf in the Canaries Sur province. Only nine of its crew of thirty-seven were rescued and slight hope was held for the remaining twenty-eight. The vessel was operated in inter-island service and so far as could be determined, carried no passengers.

The ship was caught in the storm's vortex and sent to the bottom. It was not known whether passengers were aboard.

The island of Cebu, Tayabas Province, which is in the south-eastern part of northern Luzon, the Province of Rizal and other parts of the Philippines was devastated.

Torrential rains had flooded large areas doing great damage to crops and dwellings.

Government offices and schools are closed and several newspaper plants idle with the breakdown of the electric power supply.

Steamships had been warned of the approaching storm by signals posted by the weather bureaus.

NATIONAL AIR RACE PROGRAM ENDS BUT EVENTS STILL HELD

Eckener Honored By
100,000 At Airport
On Labor Day

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—With the master mariner of the air, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, as guest of honor, the 1929 national air races and aeronautical exposition, universally acclaimed as the greatest aerial show ever held, came to a brilliant conclusion at dusk yesterday before a holiday audience of 100,000.

Although the meet is officially at an end, an accumulation of postponed events has necessitated extension of the program until today to complete the show.

While the Australian pursuit races and the dead stick landing competition is being run off, today will witness an exodus of the more than 500 planes of every description that were stored at the airport during progress of the races.

The army and navy planes which race officials conceded, were the backbone of the races and exhibitions, began their homeward flights late yesterday, and removal of the giant aircraft and displays of exhibits from the exposition at Public Hall was started at midnight.

It was reported today that next year's show would be held at Chicago. Although Cleveland has already extended its invitation for the national air races of 1930, it was pointed out that it is the carnival spirit of the show, and the widespread interest in aviation and for that reason the event would be shifted to another locality.

MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY FRIEND

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.—D. C. Handley, acting coroner, prepared to investigate today the death here of Fred Ellerman, 22, Newark, O., accidentally shot yesterday when visiting near Felicity, O.

Ellerman accompanied by Miss Dorothy Donald and her two brothers, Scott and Tom, went into a field to practice pistol shooting.

As Ellerman was arranging a target, the pistol which was in Tom's hand, was accidentally discharged and Ellerman was shot in the back.

"Dapper Dan" O'Brien Leads Bums' Rebellion;
Want Life, Leisure And National Jester

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Up in Union Square at the base of the statues of Washington and Lafayette, a new political party rose out of the heat and dust last night, sponsored by "Dapper Dan" O'Brien, king of the hoboes.

From an historic rostrum, Dapper Dan announced the new party was conceived in hunger and dedicated to the proposition that both Democrats and Republicans would bear watching. He proposes to have them watch each other while the hobo party goes marching on.

Dapper Dan's first objective is to be elected mayor of New York, and last night many were the proselytes he made from the communists and the workers' party by coming out flatly for freedom of the subways—both as a means of transportation and as bedrooms.

"We have freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of the seas," said Dapper Dan, his voice liquid with emotion, "why not freedom of the subways? Down with the five cent fare. Down with all fares."

"For the first time in history the great hobo race and creed is united under a single party banner. From hence on, there can be no question; the great parties of America are the hobo party, the Democratic party and the Republican party. That is as it should be—a Democrat to watch a Republican and a Republican to watch a Democrat."

Briefly stated, Dapper Dan's platform is designed to appeal to that section of society that objects to working for a living. It includes:

A hotel with 50,000 free rooms.
A free college for hoboes.
Suppression of all sopranos on the radio.
Breakfast in bed.
Compulsory trips to Coney Island.

Prohibition of headaches.
Immediate dismissal of all railroad detectives.

Dapper Dan demonstrated his ability to reason from cause to effect when he put forward his plan for abolishing crime.

"Empty stomachs," he said, "make full jails. Fill up people's stomachs and you'll empty the jails."

Life, leisure and the pursuit of happiness are not the only items in Dapper Dan's Utopian project. He proposes to keep a nation laughing by the appointment of an American jester.

"A good man for the job," said Dapper Dan, "would be Al Johnson."

had hidden the body of his victim, planning and then laying aside first one and then another plan for its disposal, all the while wracked by the evidence of his crime.

The body was unidentified, the woman's age was estimated at 45. Mrs. Joseph Hunt, Detroit, a tourist, found the body.

Two Morris physicians, Drs. H. M. Ferguson and W. G. Sachse, conducted post mortem examinations and reported that they were able to find no evidence of murder although they explained that microscopic analysis of the vital organs would be necessary to establish the fact that the woman died a natural death.

The physicians dissipated the first theory of police that the body was a cadaver intended for medical school dissection. They said there was no trace of any preservative and that the condition of the flesh and skin indicated that the body had been kept in a refrigerated room.

Examination set the time of the woman's death at least a month or possibly six weeks ago.

Coroner T. A. Horgan pointed out that the body probably was placed in the burlap sack soon after death, before rigor mortis set in. He said it would have been impossible to have placed the body in the sitting posture in which it was found unless it was done immediately.

The burlap bag was new and clean and the top of it was secured by wire. On the sack lay a large flat stone weighing forty pounds.

Clay on the woman's body conflicted with the physicians' statement but they explained that it was possible the murderer first decided to bury the body, then hastily changed plans, dug it up and placed it in the sack before the onset of rigor mortis.

The body weighs about 110 pounds, is five feet, three inches tall and the gray hair never had been bobbed. Two front teeth were filled with gold.

DIPHTHERIA BEING BARRED FROM OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—No child in Ohio need have diphtheria, the state department of health assures.

Since 1922 when prevention work against diphtheria started in Ohio a half million persons have been immunized. Of these there has been no death reported from the disease and no serious results from the immunization process, officials state.

The death toll from diphtheria dropped from 830 in 1922 to 369 for last year.

DISCOVERY OF WOMAN'S BODY MAY PRESENT "PERFECT CRIME"

MORRIS, Ill., Sept. 3.—A fantastic theory of a "perfect crime" involving murder by a non-traceable poison or gas and the preservation of the body for a month by refrigeration was reconstructed by detectives here today in the investigation of the mysterious death of a woman, whose nude body, carefully sewed in a burlap bag, was found beside a highway near here yesterday.

Attempted solution of the mystery called in all the science of criminology, psychology and medicine. The theory of murder, founded on only the slightest clues, was weird in every aspect and depicted the murderer as one who for weeks had hidden the body of his victim, planning and then laying aside first one and then another plan for its disposal, all the while wracked by the evidence of his crime.

The body was unidentified, the woman's age was estimated at 45. Mrs. Joseph Hunt, Detroit, a tourist, found the body.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 3.—Five persons were dead and more than a score were recovering from injuries today as the result of holiday traffic accidents.

The dead are: Edward Lynch, 29, Mrs. Leola Lynch, 29, Nicholas Watters, 29, Melvyn Williams, 23, and Paul L. Cowell, 23, all of Toledo.

A childhood romance came to a tragic end yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Lynch, who were married less than two weeks ago, were killed instantly. The car in which they were riding crashed into a pole here.

Four other occupants of the car were injured. Harry Lumy, 32, owner of the car driven by Lynch, was reported in a serious condition at a hospital.

The other occupants of the car, Mrs. Dorothy Lumy, 29, and Mr. and Mrs. James Brierly, Toledo, left the hospital after treatment.

They told police that the accident occurred when Lynch swerved to avoid striking a pedestrian.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—Two persons are dead, and eight others are recovering in hospitals here today as a result of traffic accidents over the holidays.

All except one of the fatalities and injured occurred in two wrecks.

Miss Eddie Mae David, 18, East Sparta, O., was killed and three companions seriously injured early today when they failed to observe a stop signal at an intersection and were overturned.

Miss David was killed instantly. Her companions were Carl Howenstein, 20, East Sparta, Elsie Hickman, 18, Bolivar, O., and Roy Morris, 19, Mineral City, O. All three will recover.

Five Clevelanders were injured yesterday when their car crashed into another near Geneva, O.

The 163rd traffic fatality in Cleveland of the year was John Huettner, 47, who died of injuries received when he was hit by a car.

AIR EXPLORER WEDS STAGE STAR

Captain Sir George Hubert Wilkins, daring Australian aviator and explorer, who flew over "the top of the world" in 1923 and who circled the globe with Dr. Hugo Eckener on the Graf Zeppelin, snapped with his bride, the former Miss Suzanne Bennett, one-time Broadway stage star, shortly after their marriage at Cleveland. The two were attending the air races at the Ohio metropolis and were wed by a justice of the peace.

ANXIETY FELT FOR MISSING
AIR RACE PILOT

Major John Woods Not
Seen Since Starting
Derby

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Grave anxiety was felt here today for Maj. John P. Wood, veteran pilot who was still missing twenty-nine hours after he took off from Los Angeles for Cleveland in the men's nonstop derby of the national air races.

The veteran pilot had taken off once before but had returned to the starting point when his Lockheed monoplane developed motor trouble. Three other contestants completed the flight for a share of the 10,000 prize.

With Maj. Wood was Russell Ward, a mechanic.

Wood left Los Angeles yesterday morning, his plane stocked with 45 gallons of gasoline.

Wood's course would have taken him over mountains, desert and plains, where storms have been brewing for a week.

Three other fliers made the dash before Maj. Wood took off. Lee Schoenhair was the first to complete the hop in the remarkably fast time of thirteen hours, fifty-four minutes and ten seconds.

Capt. Roscoe Turner, second nonstop derbyist, was disqualified for arriving here after 6 p. m. Henry J. Brown, air mail flyer, made the fastest time for the flight, thirteen hours, fifteen minutes and seven seconds.

Col. Arthur Goebel, Dole flight winner, withdrew from the race at the last minute because of unfavorable weather conditions. Major Wood took off despite the warnings.

CLAY on the woman's body conflicted with the physicians' statement but they explained that it was possible the murderer first decided to bury the body, then hastily changed plans, dug it up and placed it in the sack before the onset of rigor mortis.

The body weighs about 110 pounds, is five feet, three inches tall and the gray hair never had been bobbed. Two front teeth were filled with gold.

PHILIPPINES FLOODED WHEN HIT BY STORM

Islands Devastated; Torrential Rain Follows Wind.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 3.—A hurricane of typhoon proportions swept over the Philippine Islands today sinking the steamer Mayon and flooding several provinces.

The Mayon sank off Pasacac, near the Regay Gulf in the Canaries Sur province. Only nine of its crew of thirty-seven were rescued and slight hope was held for the remaining twenty-eight. The vessel was operated in inter-island service and so far as could be determined, carried no passengers.

The ship was caught in the storm's vortex and sent to the bottom. It was not known whether passengers were aboard.

The island of Cebu, Tayabas Province, which is in the southeastern part of northern Luzon, the Province of Rizal and other parts of the Philippines was devastated.

Torrential rains had flooded large areas doing great damage to crops and dwellings.

Government offices and schools are closed and several newspaper plants idle with the breakdown of the electric power supply.

Steamships had been warned of the approaching storm by signals posted by the weather bureaus.

NATIONAL AIR RACE PROGRAM ENDS BUT EVENTS STILL HELD

Eckener Honored By
100,000 At Airport
On Labor Day

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—With the master mariner of the air, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, as guest of honor, the 1929 national air races and aeronautical exposition, universally acclaimed as the greatest aerial show ever held, came to a brilliant conclusion at dusk yesterday before a holiday audience of 100,000.

Although the meet is officially at an end, an accumulation of postponed events has necessitated extension of the program until today to complete the show.

While the Australian pursuit races and the dead stick landing competition is being run off today, will witness an exodus of the more than 500 planes of every description that were stored at the airport during progress of the races.

The army and navy planes which, race officials conceded, were the backbone of the races and exhibitions, began their homeward flights late yesterday, and removal of the giant aircraft and displays of exhibits from the exposition at Public Hall was started at midnight.

It was reported today that next year's show would be held at Chicago. Although Cleveland has already extended its invitation for the national air races of 1930, it was pointed out that it is the committee's intention to create widespread interest in aviation and for that reason the event would be shifted to another locality.

Dr. Eckener was accorded the mightiest ovation ever bestowed upon any individual in Cleveland since the first visit here of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh two years ago. When the famous German pilot of the globe circling Graf passed in front of the grand stand the 100,000 greeted him with the chauntanga salute, made famous in the days of Theodore Roosevelt, tens of thousands of handkerchiefs waving him greeting.

Eckener left the airport late in the afternoon in the Goodyear baby blimp, Defender, for Akron, Lindbergh and a host of other notables.

MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY FRIEND

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.—D. C. Handley, acting coroner, prepared to investigate today the death here of Fred Ellerman, 22, Newark, O., accidentally shot yesterday when visiting near Fen City.

Ellerman is accompanied by Miss Dorothy Donald and her two brothers, Scott and Tom, went into a field to practice pistol shooting. As Ellerman was arranging a target, the pistol which was in Tom's hand, was accidentally discharged and Ellerman was shot in the back.

HOOVER BACK AFTER WEEK-END HOLIDAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—President Hoover was back at his desk in the White House executive offices today after a weekend sojourn at his Blue Ridge Mountain camp.

were on the field to see him off. He was escorted part of the way by the stunt kings of the air service squadrons, Lieut. Jimmy Doolittle, Lieut. Alford J. Williams of the navy, Eckener will confer with Good-year officials in Akron concerning the Zeppelins which are being built there for the U. S. Navy. He revealed that a new and greater giant of the air is being speeded to completion in Germany, and should be ready by April of 1931.

Four of the nation's foremost stunt fliers—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who forsook his avowed policy of conservatism in the air, Lieut. Williams, Lieut. Doolittle and Freddie Lund, civilian dare-devil—bade farewell to the spectators with their characteristic short, thrilling stunt acts.

Doolittle, who joined the "Caterpillar Club" by leaping for his life in a parachute Sunday when the wings of his plane were ripped off during a power dive, was warned to stay 1000 feet or more above the crowd.

Both service aces kept the crowd on edge as they performed intricate loops and rolls, turns and dives. Williams repeated the remarkable exhibition of upside down flying he had given Sunday, flying around the ten-mile course suspended from the cockpit of his ship, banking sharply at each turn in true racing form.

Probably the most spectacular event of the day was the fifty-mile free-for-all race. Douglas Davis of Atlanta, Ga., piloting a Travel-Aire, low-wing "mystery ship," which had thrilled the crowd with its bursts of speed and unusual performance daily, won first place.

Davis established a new world's record for the fastest time ever made by a commercial plane over a closed course. His elapsed time was 14:05.1 and his average speed 194.9 miles an hour. It was the first time a commercial ship has ever beaten the army and navy in any race.

Lindbergh and his two navy "high hat" escorts, Lieuts. O'Bierne and Kivette, made their adieux in a repetition of formation flying.

Some unforeseen factor marred the women's race to Pittsburgh. Ten entrants had signed up early yesterday, but when the event was called at 3:23 p. m. only three were on the starting line.

Miss Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Calif., won the event when she landed at the Pittsburgh-Butler Airport forty-six minutes and five seconds after she left Cleveland. Mrs. Louis McPhetridge Thaden was second with fifty minutes, four seconds. Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., was third, arriving fifteen minutes after Mrs. Thaden.

One of the most unusual features of the race program was the trimotored ship contest. Each plane carried 1,000 pounds of sand, equivalent to a pay load, over a twenty-five-mile course. The event was won by Waldo Waterman of Los Angeles in a Bach plane. He averaged 74.7 miles per hour.

In the closing event of the program, Joe Crane of Detroit, won the national parachute jumping contest, winning the $500 prize. Winners of contests on previous days competed. Dale Dryer of Cleveland won second prize and Barney Rowe of Atlanta, Ga., third.

THANKS FOR SIGHT

The Cleveland Public Library has a little box with a slot in it. The box is lettered, "Thanks for Our Sight." Patrons are invited to drop in to this box contributions to a fund that is used to buy books in raised or Braille type for the blind.

I'm all for the movement, though I think the Cleveland library is dodging something. Thanks to whom? I don't think it's necessary to be so squeamish about it. The patrons wouldn't all leave if the sign said: "Thank God for Our Sight." And the sentence would be complete, at least.

Thanks to a quack doctor who put atropine into an eye that had a slightly enlarged pupil, I have been threatened with blindness for years. So I have an intensely personal sympathy for the blind, and a great interest in the work that is being done by and for them.

And, believe me, I am frequently moved to say: "Thank God for sight!"

Much good work is being done, particularly in the larger cities, in providing books for circulation among the blind.

(By the way, I have no sympathy whatever for the sentimental movement to say "sighted" and "non-sighted" instead of seeing and blind. If a man is blind, he's blind, and knows it. You can't kid him by calling him non-sighted.)

Authors and publishers quite generally waive copyright on all books taken over for publication for the blind. Many persons spend spare hours doing the actual work of writing in the special characters used in books for the blind. There are associations supervising all this work. If any of my readers is interested, I'll get the details, names and addresses, for him or her.

I think there are few more worthy benevolent enterprises. It seems to me if I had a few billion dollars I would make it a point to see that libraries in small towns, as well as large cities, had copies of dictionaries, encyclopedias, fiction and non-fiction for the blind.

The Bible has been done into Braille, of course, as have many of the cultural and religious books that are considered standard.

But I don't think a blind person should be deprived of the pleasure of reading "Cyrano de Bergerac," "War and Peace," "South Wind," or any of the writings of Aldous Huxley. Not while money is available for so much bad booze and so many big prize fights.

CONDITION BETTER

Improvement is noted in the condition of Daniel Lewis, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis, S. Detroit St., who is in McClellan Hospital with a fractured arm and severe lacerations sustained in an accident at the plant of the Xenia Gravel Co. last Friday. The condition of Melvin Tracy, 20, Upper Bellbrook Pike, also injured in the same accident, is still regarded as serious. He is suffering from internal injuries as well as a broken rib.

LAL BAGH SOCIETY ENJOYS BREAKFAST

One of the lovely events of the late summer season was the breakfast arranged for members of the Lal Bagh Missionary Society of Trinity M. E. Church, by the group leaders, at the home of the president, Miss Emma Elbright, Corwin Ave., Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Breakfast was served to the forty guests present at small tables placed in the dining and living rooms of the beautifully decorated home. A profusion of late summer flowers was used in the decorations.

Immediately following the breakfast a short business session was held, as this was the last meeting of the conference year. Reports for the year showed this was the most successful year of the society since its organization in 1889.

Honors and a reward of a year's subscription to the "Missionary Friend," a national publication of the foreign missionary society, were given to six members of the society who did not miss a meeting during the year. Those receiving honors and rewards were: Mrs. George White, Mrs. B. U. Bell, Mrs. John Ary, Mrs. Lewis Ward, Mrs. L. A. Washburn and Miss Wells Shipley. Mrs. J. J. Stout's group had the highest number of members present throughout the year.

Several letters were read, one by Mrs. William Wilson from the student attending the Lal Bagh School for Girls at Lucknow, India. This student's education is being made possible through the scholarship given by the local society. For the past forty years the Lal Bagh Society of Trinity M. E. Church has sent this scholarship to the school in India and once each year a letter comes from the student who benefits from the fund. Mrs. Lois Olcott read a letter from a missionary in China; Mrs. B. U. Bell read one from India, and Mrs. Clara Reutinger read one from Africa.

The guests brought presents for the Christmas box which was packed and sent to a mission school in Africa.

The president, Miss Elbright, read her plans to the society for the coming year, and appointed the following committees: membership, Mrs. E. D. Beatty, Mrs. J. J. Stout, and Mrs. Lester Buell; finance, Mrs. B. U. Bell, Mrs. B. F. Thomas and Mrs. Clara Reutinger; mite box secretary, Mrs. George White; stewardship secretary, Mrs. Maude Stark; music, Mrs. Lynn Johnson; extension, Miss Wells Shipley; Mrs. Lewis Ward and Mrs. L. A. Washburn; posters, Miss Edith Robinson and Mrs. Elizabeth Hanley.

Affairs of the society for the coming year will be in the hands of the following officers: president, Mrs. Elbright; vice president, Mrs. Harold Owens; secretary, Mrs. John Ary; treasurer, Mrs. B. U. Bell and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Minor Monroe.

Mrs. Fred Alden, Columbus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bishop, was the only out of town guest present.

The hostess was assisted by the group leaders who were: Mrs. Lester Buell, Mrs. Clara Reutinger, Mrs. L. A. Washburn, Miss Wells Shipley and Mrs. J. J. Stout.

The next regular meeting will be held Monday, October 7 at the home of Mrs. H. C. Aultman, W. Market St., and the program will be given by the children's missionary society.

EXCESS ACID SICKENS - GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas, these are signs which usually mean just one thing; excess acid. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. Too much acid is making food sour in the stomach and intestines.

The way to correct excess acid is with an alkali. The best form of alkali for this purpose is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Just take a spoonful of this harmless, almost tasteless preparation in a glass of water. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. You are happy again in five minutes! Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Know Phillips Milk of Magnesia and you're through with crude methods forever. It is the pleasant way—the efficient way to alkalize the system; to relieve the effects of overacidity.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores. Be sure you get the genuine.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessors, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1874.

Providing he pays the assessment, it is probable he will be released under $500 bond for appearance at a hearing assigned for September 10 when he may be tried on another charge of possessing liquor-making apparatus.

Bent was arrested last Thursday on suspicion of connection with bootlegging activities with the discovery of a seventy-five gallon capacity still, several barrels of mash and some liquor by police who raided his home.

Bent disclaimed ownership of the still, asserting it was placed there by some one else for the purpose of manufacturing liquor. Police are searching for the real owner.

NEARLY 2,000 CHILDREN BEGIN STUDIES ON TUESDAY MORNING

There trooped into the Xenia public schools Tuesday morning an army without weapons that in numbers was nearly equal to one-sixth of the population of the city.

Doors of all public school buildings were thrown open for the fall term Tuesday and a survey revealed the enrollment for the opening session totaled 1,861 children. With more than 200 more pupils expected Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday the enrollment is expected to pass the 2,000 mark within a few days.

The most populous center was the Xenia Central High School building, where 557 students were enrolled Tuesday in the junior and senior high schools. McKinley grade building reported 491 pupils; 267 at Spring Hill, 244 at Lincoln; 159 at East High School; seventy-eight at Orient Hill; forty-nine in Central first grade; and twenty-four in special grades.

The second grade boasts a greater number of pupils than any other of the twelve school grades, having 211, according to a check made by Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The enrollment by grades is as follows: first, 203; second, 211; third, 193; fourth, 189; fifth, 156; sixth, 153; seventh, 185; eighth, 119; ninth, 154; tenth, 126; eleventh, 91; twelfth, 81.

Disregarding the Labor Day holiday, a majority of the rural and village schools opened for the fall term Monday with half-day sessions. Schools at the O. S. and S. O. Home also opened Tuesday morning.

Pupils of St. Brigid Catholic schools will enjoy another week of vacation before returning to their study books as the parochial schools of the archdiocese do not re-convene for the fall term until September 9.

FLOWER SHOW AND HISTORICAL PROGRAM FEAT URES LABOR DAY

Xenia's public observance of Labor Day was marked by a community celebration and joint flower show and historical meeting in Shawnee Park Monday, sponsored by the Xenia Garden Club.

The program included an amateur flower show of the Garden Club which exceeded in size and interest the flower show held during the home-coming last year and included exhibits from all parts of Greene County, placed in the park pavilion; also the regular meeting of the Greene County Historical Society, a community picnic supper and a night program of addresses and motion pictures.

In connection with the show, the historical society held its meeting in the afternoon with Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, tree expert, delivering an address on "Native Trees of Greene County."

Opening his address, Dr. Haines declared that "this would indeed be a desert place were it not for the lovely trees that spread their branches above and about us, to shelter us from the rays of the summer's sun, and protect us from the winter's blast."

"We who live in this land of ours are surely most favored in having the hard wood finally dominates over all."

"As to some of the special trees of Greene County, I want to call your attention to them because of their history being connected with our famous Greene County boys and since they were brought here first as curiosities and have now become indigenous to our soil."

Dr. Haines also recited an original poem concerning trees. His talk was followed by an open discussion, when questions regarding tree lore were answered. Dr. W. A. Galloway, president of the society, opened the discussion. Instead of a gavel he used a shillalah brought back to Xenia from Ireland by W. R. Torrance.

The forum was then turned over to W. A. Paxson, Jamestown, also a tree enthusiast, who gave a short talk on the subject.

An indication of the influence of "Trees, not only in their natural state, form a large part of our scenic beauty and they also form an important part in our literature and art, as no literary production is complete without many references to the trees and the part they have had in history."

"Speaking of the trees of Greene County, there are more than 300 species of trees that are indigenous to our soil. For instance the oak has thirty-one species, the hawthorn with forty-two species, the maple with sixteen species, the hickory with twelve, and so on. One has to be a botanist to separate them and classify them to their family or genera."

"In Greene County it is probable that in the far past that the society despite the fact it only came into existence a year ago, was contained in a letter received by the organization from H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, disclosing that in accordance with the plan of the schools to stimulate the study of local history and to instill proper appreciation "for the sacrifice and service rendered by our pioneer forefathers, we have placed this year in the course of study of county public schools, the request that all teachers encourage the study of our local history."

Teachers have also been advised to have the children collect and bring for exhibition, relics of pioneer days, and also tell of the history connected with them as well as write stories for language composition and history work.

"We shall be very glad to have suggestions from the members of the historical society and all others who will co-operate in this effort to arouse interest in study of pioneer history of this county," the superintendent wrote.

Because of the limited time, a business meeting of the society was deferred until the next regular meeting. One resolution was passed to the effect "that the four elective officers of the society be given full power and authority to act for the society on all questions, until such a time as the executive board may be appointed at a regular business meeting."

It was also revealed at the meeting that dedicatory exercises for the famous mound on the David S. Williamson farm near Cedarville, which marks the northeast end of the fortifications of the mound builders which start at Fort Ancient, will be held soon. The deed to the mound has been turned over to the Ohio State Archaeological Society but the preservation of the mound has been entrusted to the local historical society. Speakers of state-wide prominence are expected to be obtained for the dedication.

Wide-spread interest was manifested in the exhibit, which attracted attention from all parts of the county. Providing exhibitors were a member of the club they were not charged an entry fee. Otherwise they were asked to join for the nominal price of twenty-five cents a year, which also covered the entrance fee.

The historical society also wishes to take this opportunity for expressing its appreciation to the garden club which enabled it to hold its meeting amid such an attractive setting as the flower show afforded.

A picnic luncheon was served at 6 o'clock and patrons who bought luncheon at the park were helping to defray the debt still remaining on the park auditorium, which was built last year.

Other addresses during the celebration included one by Mrs. George F. McDonald, Wyoming, O., state chairman of conservation of forestry and beautifying state highways for the Federated Women's Clubs and one in the evening by Mrs. M. F. Thompson, Lima, state chairman of conservation of wild flowers for the Federated Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Thompson spoke in connection with the showing of 11,000 feet of films of the noted gardens of the world. She has an estate of nine acres near Lima, all of which is landscaped.

During the program the Trinity M. E. Church Orchestra furnished music. Prizes will be presented on the night of the flower show but a list of the individual awards is not complete. A silver loving cup is to be donated by B. H. Slagle, chairman of the flower show committee.

Three organization prizes were awarded. Eleazar Church won first prize of $20, the Second U. P. Church second prize of $10 and the First U. P. Church, third prize of $5. They were offered by B. H. Slagle to the club, lodge or organizations which made the best display of flowers.

Widespread interest was manifested in the exhibit, which attracted attention from all parts of the county. Providing exhibitors were a member of the club they were not charged an entry fee. Otherwise they were asked to join for the nominal price of twenty-five cents a year, which also covered the entrance fee.

CHANGES PLEA AND IS FINED BY MAYOR

Changing his plea from not guilty to guilty to a charge of possessing liquor, Aniel Bent, colored, 44 Taylor St., was fined $100 and costs by Mayor Karl R. Babb Tuesday morning.

Providing he pays the assessment, it is probable he will be released under $500 bond for appearance at a hearing assigned for September 10 when he may be tried on another charge of possessing liquor-making apparatus.

Bent was arrested last Thursday on suspicion of connection with bootlegging activities with the capacity of a seventy-five gallon mash still, several barrels of mash and some liquor by police who raided his home.

Bent disclaimed ownership of the still, asserting it was placed there by some one else for the purpose of manufacturing liquor. Police are searching for the real owner.

NEARLY 2,000 CHILDREN BEGIN STUDIES ON TUESDAY MORNING

There trooped into the Xenia public schools Tuesday morning an army without weapons that in numbers was nearly equal to one-sixth of the population of the city.

Doors of all public school buildings were thrown open for the fall term Tuesday and a survey revealed the enrollment for the opening session totaled 1,891 children. With more than 200 more pupils expected Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday the enrollment is expected to pass the 2,000 mark within a few days.

The most populous center was the Xenia Central High School building, where 597 students were enrolled Tuesday in the junior and senior high schools. McKinley grade building reported 491 pupils; 267 at Spring Hill, 244 at Lincoln; 159 at East High School; seventy-eight at Orient Hill; forty-nine in Central first grade; and twenty-four in special grades.

FLOWER SHOW AND HISTORICAL PROGRAM FEAT URES LABOR DAY

Xenia's public observance of Labor Day was marked by a community celebration and joint flower show and historical meeting in Shawnee Park Monday. Sponsored by the Xenia Garden Club.

The program included an amateur flower show of the Garden Club which exceeded in size and interest the flower show held during the home-coming last year and included exhibits from all parts of Greene County, placed in the park pavilion; also the regular meeting of the Greene County Historical Society, a community picnic supper and a right program of addresses and motion pictures.

In connection with the show, the historical society held its meeting in the afternoon with Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, tree expert, delivering an address on "Native Trees of Greene County."

Opening his address, Dr. Haines declared that "this would indeed be a desert place were it not for the lovely trees that spread their branches above and about us, to shelter us from the rays of the summer's sun, and protect us from the winter's blast."

"We who live in this land of ours are surely most favored in having such a profusion of trees of so many varieties growing all about us. The aborigines, the first denizens of this fair land of ours, exhibited their profound wisdom in locating in this fertile country in the very heart of the virgin forest. Why even in the state of Ohio and in this county of Greene there are more than 300 varieties of trees that are indigenous to our soil and surroundings besides the numbers of others of foreign origin that have been propagated here by horticulturists."

"Trees, not only in their natural state, form a large part of our scenic beauty and they also form an important part in our literature and art, as no literary production is complete without many references to the trees and the part they have had in history."

"Speaking of the trees of Greene County, there are more than 300 species of trees that are indigenous to our soil. For instance the oak has thirty-one species, the hawthorn with forty-two species, the maple with sixteen species, the hickory with twelve, and so on. One has to be a botanist to separate them and classify them to their family or genera."

"In Greene County it is probable that in the far past that the evergreens predominated here as there is evidence of that being the case. Nevertheless, after many years of growth of evergreens the oaks begin to grow. They were slow upon the evergreens and slowly but surely put an end to them, hence the hard wood finally dominates over all."

"As to some of the special trees of Greene County, I want to call your attention to them because of their history being connected with our famous Greene County boys and since they were brought here first as curiosities and have now become indigenous to our soil."

Dr. Haines displayed limbs of various trees he discussed, mentioning in particular the "cinker tree, native of Japan, which never perishes. Only two trees of this kind have been found in Greene County. One is located in the yard of the Schmidt property on W. Second St., and the other in the rear of the Masonic Temple."

The tree expert also asserted that starting from the top of a hill this side of Spring Valley a total of 187 different varieties of trees may be found in the five-mile area extending to the Zoar Church. No other five miles in the United States can equal this area in varieties of trees, he said.

Dr. Haines also recited an original poem concerning trees. His talk was followed by an open discussion, when questions regarding tree lore were answered. Dr. W. A. Galloway, president of the society, opened the discussion. Instead of a gavel he used a shillalah brought back to Xenia from Ireland by W. R. Torrence.

The forum was then turned over to W. A. Paxson, Jamestown, also a tree enthusiast, who gave a short talk on the subject.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE CROSS — He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.—Matthew 10:37, 38.

SOVIET EXPOSED

To the world at large, the precise merits of the quarrel between the Chinese and the Russian bolsheviks is somewhat less important than the fact that the latter have resorted incontinently to arms and are starting an aggressive, coercive war in order to obtain their desires.

This is indirect and flagrant negation of the high flown and peremptory disarmament and pacifist talk emitted by Red emissaries at peace and disarmament conferences at Geneva and elsewhere. It exposes the lying hypocrisy of that talk in a way which ought to dispose effectually of the illusions of any people who may have been deceived by the lofty periods of the communist orators, and by their "holier than thou" attitudes.

The Reds are what they always have been, conscienceless, predatory bandits, without sense of gratitude, obligation or honor. Just now they are courting American business, as a few years ago they courted the Chinese, for their own purposes. The treatment they are giving the Chinese today, is the treatment they will give American business which deals with them, if ever opportunity and self interest tempt them.

YOUNG FARMERS

Where there are still active and successful country fairs there usually is found one decidedly modern development. That is the work of youngsters. At one large county fair in Ohio, recently, more than $1,000 in prizes and premiums was awarded for boys' and girls' club exhibits. At this fair, it was said, practically all classes in which farmers competed were duplicated in junior competition.

Boys and girls on farms these days are doing excellent work in live stock and poultry raising, in canning, clothing and garden clubs. These alert youngsters are no longer assigned mere chores in which they have no personal interest. Their club work makes them fellow-farmers with their elders.

The clubs are found all over the country. The work accomplished by their youthful members is well done. It is quite likely that many an old-time farmer has been induced to get rid of scrubs in his livestock and to go in for purebred animals as a result of the attitude of his sons.

A person looking over the programs of county fairs is inclined to feel that the alert boys and girls who are planning to stay on the farms because they like the work and are learning the best ways to carry it on will develop some of their own farm relief.

NEW YORK—It's almost impossible to get a cup of good coffee in New York. With the passing of the Waldorf and kindred places, and the continual springing up of the Coffee shops, or "shoppes," what passes for coffee would lead you to believe it had been brewed in the heel of an old boot aided by a passing shower.

Another attack on fundamentalist coffee is staged by a chain of "coffee houses" which try to make you forget their abominable concoction by surrounding you with such obvious atmosphere as that provided by waitresses masquerading as Spaniards and Italians.

If the "Java" situation isn't remedied pretty soon, New York won't know any more about good coffee than it knows about good likker.

BEWARE!

The Board of Health camped on the trail of Beauty recently and unearthed a lot of scandalous doings. Five hundred of the city's 1,500 complexion Coizers were cold creaming their clients without a license. Nine varieties of lipstick selected at random from the 90 brands on sale were found to be poisonous and in some of the Dan-druff Dens they found the Professors using lotions containing parabenylendiamine. That is what the Board of Health called it, and they say a thing like that it's always well not to argue with them.

There's no telling how much New York contributed to the country's beauty bill last year, amounting to $390,000,000; but you can rest assured it paid its ample share. The labor and money spent by women on beauty is a grand thing. I'm in favor of it; but what woman should care that the most valuable of beauty attainments cost absolutely nothing—that is, if you except energy, common sense and perseverance.

With daily exercise, proper posture, a sensible diet, adequate sleep, deep breathing, enough fresh air, soap and water, and a serene disposition, a perfect foundation is achieved. Little external aids to nature may be added; but they need a fine, strong body if they're going to make any kind of showing. How much beauty is just sheer good health!

NO HELP FROM GROVER

New York lags far behind other big cities in the country in highway directional signs for motor tourists. Motorists from the outside driving into and through the city have nothing to guide them and the city's attitude, especially in official circles, seems to be one of indifference.

Asked to define his attitude in the matter, Grover Whalen, The-Prettiest-Police-Commissioner-New-York-Ever-Had, spoke as follows: "We need erect no signs to direct transient motorists to other cities. Why should we? They pay no taxes, make no contribution. Tax-paying New Yorkers come first. Our consideration just now is with them only."

A few weeks ago, in the back piazza of the Saturday Evening Post, in conjunction with some commercial publicity, appeared a page advertisement to the effect that "Major Walker Welcomes You to New York!"

As they'd say on Broadway, "Whalen isn't a very good straight for Jimmy's comedy."

SPEAKING OF SLANG

One of the Broadway shows last season carried the line: "No matter how thin you slice it, it's still boloney."

They took the show to London, where the line caused much furrowing of brows. Finally it was Anglicized and thus delivered: "Irrespective of how thin you pare it, it nevertheless remains sausage, old dear!"

SURE IS TOUGH!

Some New Yorkers departed on a special train from New York recently for an extended stay in the Federal Pen. at Atlanta. Several others may follow.

It's a tough thing, Brethren, to be caught in broad daylight, in the middle of the turnpike, accompanied by an anonymous bankroll and no alibi!

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

INMATES

A middle western state reports over 30,000 persons in state institutions. That's probably a fair average for a large number of states. Ten thousand and more are in prisons and the rest in hospitals, feeble-minded institutions, schools for defectives and so on. Recent statistics say two million persons in America are so mentally defective they need institutional care. There are thousands more who never find their way into institutions but should. The manner of life that we roughly describe as civilization demands a heavy price.

TROLLEYS

The thrill of his first trolley ride remains with the writer even today. American cities push street car lines further back. Manchester, one of the great cities of England, may scrap its car lines. In prehistoric days the ages of man passed slowly. Century followed century with little change. Now we pass from one age to the next in generation, sometimes almost in a decade. Street cars go the way of grandfather's buggy.

PALESTINE

The upbuilding of Palestine is one of the most interesting undertakings in history. The Palestine Economic corporation is established on a sound American business basis. Already there are two subscriptions of a half million dollars each from Felix Warburg and Lord Melchett. This Jewish enterprise may prove one of the major developments of modern times.

NEW BORDERS OR NO BORDERS

War can establish lines but it cannot hold them. Common interest, especially common ideals and enthusiasms, runs over borders or makes new ones. German communists present the commander-in-chief of the Russian army with a saber. And nothing pushes down international walls faster than fanaticism.

AS TO MILK

History is sometimes de-bunked. Old-fangled beliefs and traditions are sometimes proved false by the cold light of investigation and analysis. So with our opinions about some other things. Who has not been taught to believe that milk is the one perfect food? Comes now a chemist of note, Dr. W. E. Kraus, who says there is no iron in milk. Animals given milk exclusively have anemia.

More and more one is forced to the conclusion that the only way to be well is to eat everything that is edible. But remember that the stomach is a small organ.

Congressman from Indiana

(William Robert Wood was born at Oxford, Ind., Jan. 6, 1861. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan. Admitted to the bar in 1882, he began his practice at Lafayette, Ind. From 1896 to 1914 he was a member of the Indiana senate. In 1915 he was elected to congress from the tenth Indiana district, and has been returned each term since. He is a Republican.)

I am in hearty accord with President Hoover's endeavors to reduce the military expenditures, and I am of the opinion that his efforts will meet with the approval of the vast majority of the citizens of the United States.

There is no real reason for the tremendous and ever increasing outlay that is being made to maintain our military establishment. In my opinion we are farther removed from war and the possibility of war than we have been since the foundation of the republic. Yet we are better equipped to meet the eventualities of war than ever before in the existence of our government.

There is a potential army of more than 500,000 men, including the regular army, national guard, reserves, etc. It seems very inconsistent with all the gestures for peace that the world seems to be making to keep on expanding our military establishment and constantly increasing the cost to the taxpayers of the country.

The regular army today consists of 111,000 men in active service, with more than 11,000 officers. Thus it would seem that the officer class is woefully top-heavy. In time of war one major general will command from 20,000 to 25,000 men. Today in time of peace on the canal zone alone, we have 9,000 men with four major generals commanding them, each of these generals with a complete staff. How ridiculous it must appear to the average citizen that if one general could command 25,000 men in time of war it takes four generals to command 9,000 men in time of peace.

Our coast artillery now exists practically only in name. The bombing planes have put the coast artillery out of business. What little there is left of it should be under the command and direction of the ordinary artillery service. Today with the coast artillery practically obsolete there is a major general with a full staff complement.

The financial division of the army is a national guard. Its duties could just as well and no doubt better be discharged by the quartermasters' department. Yet there is a major general at the head of the finance division, with a full staff complement.

I sincerely hope that the general staff that has been charged by the president with the duties of reducing the cost of our military establishment will appreciate to the full the degree the importance of their task and that the result achieved will prove creditable.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Sun-tan has been more popular this year than ever before. But if you have acquired the natural tan—and not merely the artificial—it may be unbecoming; or uneven—or you may decide that it is out of character with your role in life; or your new fall clothes. In vivid sport togs, a bronzed skin is lovely—but autumn is more formal—its colors richer and more somber—harmonizing better with a clear and radiant skin. Freckles that were alluring as ardent kisses of the sun with a background of gay summer frocks, become blemishes once they are brought into the drawing room and the formal social life of autumn.

It is much easier to acquire a coat of tan or a sprinkling of freckles than it is to get rid of them. However, persistence and the right treatment will work wonders. You can do something by washing the face with a mixture of one part lemon and two parts water, but it is much easier and more efficacious to use the really scientific bleaching preparations that have been prepared for you. The regime is simple. Cleanse the face and neck—don't, please don't overlook the neck—with a special cleansing and bleaching cream or, if your skin is oily, wash with a bleaching soap. Then smooth on a film of freckle cream and leave on for half an hour. If your skin is very tanned or badly freckled, you may use a bleaching lotion which is stronger than the freckle cream and intended for extreme cases. And if you are in a great hurry—why then you may use both the freckle cream and the bleaching lotion at different times during the day.

Bleaching is always a little bit drying and after the summer the skin is liable to be very dry anyway. So be most careful with your lubricating and nourishing, pay more attention to them than you would at any other season.

Don't forget your beautifying skin food, for to be beautiful, the skin must be clear and radiant as well as fair—and the beautifying skin food clears and animates, helps the skin to throw off all impurities. You may apply the beautifying skin food the last thing before going to bed and you may leave it on overnight if this is convenient. If not, keep it on at least fifteen or twenty minutes, for it is a wonderful good friend to the skin!

If you're wise—and most women are in the autumn, having learned their beauty lesson from summer's ravages—you will protect your skin all day long by going out! Yes, the winds of autumn will devitalize almost as badly as the summer sun—and there's not much wisdom in bleaching if you are going right out to expose your skin all day long again, is there? So use your sun-proof and windproof cream faithfully—always before you go powder and especially when you are going out.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Members of the house of representatives like Henry T. Rainey and Cordell Hull, who denounced the tariff bill, passed by their branch of congress last spring, as the worst piece of financial legislation they ever had seen in their lives, certainly have been vindicated.

The senate tariff committee's action, in cutting it down, speaks for itself.

Any list of tariff rates which was too high for a group of senators, including Chairman Reed Smoot, of the committee, James E. Watson, David A. Reed and Samuel M. Shortridge must have been terrible.

In fact, it must have been even worse than Representatives Rainey and Hull thought, because they both predicted that the senators would boost the whole thing.

To assume that Committeemen Smoot, Watson, Reed and Shortridge did not want to boost it would be doing them a great injustice, however.

They left the rates as high as they believed they would be able to get the rest of the senate to endorse. Perhaps they are higher yet than they can persuade a majority to accept.

Nobody but a super-expert ever understands a new tariff schedule, and the expert himself generally discovers, in due season, that he has made a lot of mistakes.

Such bills have to start in the house of representatives. Staff that has been charged by the president with the duties of reducing the cost of our military establishment will appreciate to the full the degree the importance of their task and that the result achieved will prove creditable.

The representatives' ways and means committee began work on this one away back last winter, with Chairman Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon, in charge of the job.

Hence its name—the Hawley-Smoot bill—after the two chairmen.

First a series of tariff hearings was held, lasting for weeks. The minority members of the committee—Rainey, Hull, et al.—were allowed to be in on that. When it came to drafting the bill, the majority locked them out, to avoid being bothered by their kicking.

From the old law—itsself the highest tariff enactment in all previous history—the majority built up.

The task finished, the minority was given a look.

All hands promptly yelled bloody murder, of course. Equally promptly and equally, of course, the house or representatives passed the bill.

Then came the senate finance committee's turn.

As before, there were prolonged hearings, attended by all members. As before, when the time arrived to draft the revised bill—revised from the representatives' model—the minority members were barred and the G. O. P. majority toiled secretly.

A few days ago the finished product was submitted to the minority, to make the most of—and by gosh! it was not as high as they had expected—not as high as it was before.

So chairman Smoot says, at any rate.

To the untrained eye, the bill is a mere jumble of figures, signifying nothing. Chairman Smoot, however, knows more about tariffs than any one else in the world and what he says undoubtedly is right.

Under the present (the old) tariff law, collections are about $515,000,000 a year.

Chairman Smoot says the house of representatives' proposed law would bring collections up to approximately $645,000,000, but the senate's schedule will stop in the neighborhood of $605,000,000.

In other words, the senate bill—if we get off that easily—will increase the cost of American's living only 90 millions annually; the house bill—if adopted just as the house passed it—would increase it 130 millions.

If the high tariff fixers deliberately thought up this scheme—this cut from 130 to only 90 millions—it was good tactics. Even a free trader must admit that.

Ninety millions, mentioned all by itself, sounds like a sizeable sum. Directly following a reference to 130 millions, it sounds much smaller—only 90 millions!—think of that!—a mere bagatelle!

But my impression is that the senate busters bit of nearly 90 not so much as a matter of clever generalship, as because they were afraid it was all they could chew at one mouthful—that the upper house would choke on the 130 which the lower one was able to masticate, with its better set of majority teeth.

It goes to prove that the senate has better table manners than the house representatives, anyway.

A delicious way to use the last of the roast is to cut the scraps into small pieces. Add half as much coarsely-cut cabbage, a sliced tomato, a sliced onion, and the remaining gravy. Add a little hot water, simmer until quite thick and everything is tender. Serve on a small platter with a border of cooked rice.

When Young People Reduce

Mother—When young people are reducing, it is important for them to have their full quota of growth foods, so three glasses of milk, some eggs or a small piece of meat, and liberal amounts of fruits and vegetables should not be omitted. Candy, nuts and oils can be cut out entirely, and breads and cereals cut down markedly. If your daughter takes whole milk, she can cut her butter down to one pat a day, but if she takes skim milk she had better have some cream or more butter to make up for the lack of vitamin A in the skim milk. Or, if she wants to reduce the butter and cream, she can take daily a teaspoon of cod liver oil. It is much higher in the disease-resisting vitamin A than butter or cream, and one teaspoon counts but 35 calories. The exercises can usually be increased.

A slow reduction is advisable for the young because of growth demands. Their increase in height will automatically make them slimmer, even if there is but little loss in weight. It is considered better for young people under 21 to be slightly over the average weight, rather than under.

You may have our pamphlet on the subject of Reducing and Gaining weight by following column rules.

"I have a large cyst on the top of my head, about the size of an egg. Is it dangerous to have it removed? I have been dyeing my hair for years and I am wondering if that procedure might in any way be responsible for its growth? Could a cyst cause you to have a violent temper? I'm beginning to boast of my temper and I'm really ashamed of it, for it is nothing to brag about."

MRS. D.

I never have heard of hair cysts forming cysts. Mrs. D. If they should contain harmful ingredients their effects are more apt to be felt generally, especially on the nervous system. I couldn't tell if your temper is caused by this or not. But any one who gets into a temper easily is unbalanced for some reason!

The cyst you have on your head is most likely a sebaceous cyst known as a wen. These are not infrequent on the head, back and face. But you should see a physician, anyway, not only to know what it is but to have it removed.

The cause of wens is not known. The contents consist of the same material as is in blackheads—sebum which is really the natural oil of the skin glands. It may be possible that one who is subject to cysts is born with a little abnormality in the skin which causes these formations. There may sometimes be but one and sometimes two or three.

Their removal is a simple matter, for they are encapsulated. A simple incision in the skin and a dissection out, including its sac, is the method most curative. (If the sac is left in, the cyst will grow again.)

Wens are not considered dangerous to any degree, but they may continue to grow and be very inconvenient, and they certainly are not pretty to look at. They are usually devoid of hair, if they are on the scalp.

MRS. G.—We have a new pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders which answers your questions on sugar in the urine and gives a simple test for detecting its presence. See column rules for obtaining this.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Isn't there one such person as this letter describes in every business office, club and neighborhood? They are always the fly in the otherwise perfectly good omelette, the rotten apple in the barrel that spoils the whole lot. What can we do about them?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your good advice in the paper every evening and really that is the reason why I take the paper now. We have decided to put the question before you.

"We belong to a club simply for pastime, and not for gossip about our neighbors. But, Virginia, there is one old hen who belongs to this club, and every time we meet she has a long string to tell on someone, and this makes the game so tiresome. This gossiping isn't just about people she doesn't like. It is about her best friends, always, of course, when they are not present."

"Of course we all know we get it when our backs are turned, but what can we do to stop her gossip? The most fun we have is when she is late, but just as soon as she gets in, the old story begins."

"She has four boys, ranging in age from six to 16, and they are always running over the neighbors' lawn destroying flowers, and it makes us mad to tell her nicely to keep them off. Her own back yard is full of flowers, but she doesn't let them get in there. She never stays in the house. She is always in somebody's yard giving it to some of her neighbors."

"Now please tell us how we can dismiss that kind of a member without making her mad, for that would mean a lot more gossip?"

"DISGUSTED."

There is always such a person in every neighborhood and club to take the joy out of life. Disgusted. Why we tolerate them is a mystery to me. They hurt everybody's feelings. They have no kindness in their hearts for anyone, but no one has the courage to tell them what despicable pests they are. Why is it? Why do we tolerate such folks? Is it because we are afraid of them? I think that must be it, for such people have sharp tongues and can usually outtalk an ordinary person.

You can't get rid of them without hurting their feelings and making them mad. The more hateful they are to others the more sensitive they are about their own feelings. I don't know why, but it is so.

The only way you can rid yourself of her is to tell her outright that you don't want her, and I'm afraid no one would have the courage to do that. If someone would tell her exactly what they thought of her and of how late she was, and how annoying her talk and actions were, she would not believe them, and would be the most heartbroken person in the world to think that such things could even be thought of her, but it should be done.

The only other thing you can do is to out-talk her.

Every time she starts gossiping about someone, change the subject. Act as if you haven't heard what she says and begin talking about something else. It will seem rude, I know, but no ruder than she is. If all the club members agree to do this she will have to talk to herself or quit.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: On reading a Widowed Wife's life story I feel sorry for her, for I have very nearly the same life but I always say it can't last forever. There will be a change some day."

"I am married seventeen and a half years. Every time we go to a movie and I don't drive the car just right, my husband gets angry and will not talk for a week. He would come home, eat his meals and either sit in a corner or go out. That was the beginning. Now if I ask him to do little jobs for me he gets angry."

"I cannot tell or show him how I would like to have it done. He says he will not let anyone boss him. When he is alone he is alright, and with other people, but when I am there he sulks, now for two weeks at a time. He is a good provider but no companion. I am thankful I have no children. I often think I can't stand it much longer. Sometimes I think I'll end it all."

"LENORA LOUISE,"
Funny how hard men try to win women and then, when won, treat them as they would not think of treating a dog, isn't it? And it's funny how women stick to their husbands. Why, for instance, do you stay with yours? Of course you might lose the result of all your years of work with him if you left.

You have not been receiving the money you have earned all these years keeping house for him, and I suppose if you left he would get everything unless you could come to a money settlement. Perhaps you may, even, love him, in spite of his treatment. Women are like that. It seems to me a pity that you haven't children, because then you would have some one to keep you company.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE CROSS—He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.—Matthew 10:37, 38.

SOVIET EXPOSED

To the world at large, the precise merits of the quarrel between the Chinese and the Russian bolsheviks is somewhat less important than the fact that the latter have resorted incontinently to arms and are starting an aggressive, coercive war in order to obtain their desires.

This is indirect and flagrant negation of the high flown and peremptory disarmament and pacifist talk emitted by Red emissaries at peace and disarmament conferences at Geneva and elsewhere. It exposes the lying hypocrisy of that talk in a way which ought to dispose effectually of the illusions of any people who may have been deceived by the lofty periods of the communist orators, and by their "holier than thou" attitudes.

The Reds are what they always have been, conscienceless, predatory bandits, without sense of gratitude, obligation or honor. Just now they are courting American business, as a few years ago they courted the Chinese, for their own purposes. The treatment they are giving the Chinese today, is the treatment they will give American business which deals with them, if ever opportunity and self interest tempt them.

YOUNG FARMERS

Where there are still active and successful country fairs there is found one decidedly modern development. That is the work of youngsters. At one large county fair in Ohio, recently, more than $1,000 in prizes and premiums was awarded for boys' and girls' club exhibits. At this fair, it was said, practically all classes in which farmers competed were duplicated in junior competition.

Boys and girls on farms these days are doing excellent work in live stock and poultry raising, in canning, clothing and garden clubs. These alert youngsters are no longer assigned mere chores in which they have no personal interest. Their club work makes them fellow-farmers with their elders.

The clubs are found all over the country. The work accomplished by their youthful members is well done. It is quite likely that many an old-time farmer has been induced to get rid of scrubs in his livestock and to go in for purebred animals as a result of the attitude of his sons.

A person looking over the programs of county fairs is inclined to feel that the alert boys and girls who are planning to stay on the farms because they like the work and are learning the best ways to carry it on will develop some of their own farm relief.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—It's almost impossible to get a cup of good coffee in New York. With the passing of the Waldorf and kindred places, and the continual springing up of the Coffee shops or "shoppes," what passes for coffee would lead you to believe it had been brewed in the heel of an old boot aided by a passing shower.

Another attack on fundamental coffee is staged by a chain of "coffee houses" which try to make you forget their abominable concoction by surrounding you with such obvious atmosphere as that provided by waitresses masquerading as Spaniards and Italians.

If the "Java" situation isn't remedied pretty soon, New York won't know any more about good coffee than it knows about good likker.

BEWARE!

The Board of Health camped on the trail of Beauty recently and unearthed a lot of scandalous doings. Five hundred of the city's 1,500 Complexion Cozers were cold creaming their clients without a license. Nine varieties of lipstick selected at random from the 90 brands on sale were found to be poisonous and in some of the Dantruff Dens they found the Professors using lotions containing paraffin, benzoic acid, and other things that the Board of Health called it, and when they say a thing like that it's always well not to argue with them.

There's no telling how much New York beauty bill last year, amounting to $390,000,000, but you can rest assured it paid its ample share. The labor and money spent by women on beauty is a grand thing. I'm in favor of it; but what woman should be so vain that the most valuable of beauty attainments cost absolutely nothing—that is, if you expect entry, common sense and perseverance.

With daily exercise, proper posture, a sensible diet, adequate sleep, deep breathing, enough fresh air, soap and water, and a serene disposition, a perfect foundation is achieved. Little external aids to nature may be added; but they need a fine, strong body if they're to do any good.

Some New Yorkers departed on a special train from New York recently for an extended stay in the Federal Pen. at Atlanta. Several others may follow.

It's a tough thing, brethren, to be caught in broad daylight, in the middle of the turnpike, accompanied by an anonymous bankroll and nab!.

THE WAY of the WORLD

INMATES

A middle western state reports over 30,000 persons in state institutions. That's probably a fair average for a large number of states. Ten thousand and more are in prisons and the rest in hospitals, feeble-minded institutions, schools for defectives and so on. Recent statistics say two million persons in America are so mentally defective they need institutional care. There are thousands more who never find their way into institutions but should. The manner of life that we roughly describe as civilization demands a heavy price.

TROLLEYS

The thrill of its first trolley ride remains with the writer even today. American cities push street car lines further back. Manchester, one of the great cities of England, may scrap its car lines. In prehistoric days the ages of man passed slowly. Century followed century with little change. Now we pass from one age to the next in generation, sometimes almost in a decade. Street cars go the way of grandfather's buggy.

PALESTINE

The upbuilding of Palestine is one of the most interesting undertakings in history. The Palestine Economic corporation is established on a sound American business basis. Already there are two subscriptions of a half million dollars each from Felix Warburg and Lord Melchet. This Jewish enterprise may prove one of the modern developments of modern times.

NEW BORDERS OR NO BORDERS

War can establish lines but it cannot hold them. Common interest, especially common ideals and enthusiasms, runs over borders or makes new ones. German communists present the commander-in-chief of the Russian army with a saber. And nothing pushes down international walls faster than fanaticism.

AS TO MILK

History is sometimes de-bunked. Our fondest beliefs and traditions are sometimes proved false by the cold light of investigation and analysis. So with our opinions about some other things. Who has not been taught to believe that milk is the one perfect food? Comes now a chemist of note, Dr. W. E. Kraus, who says there is no iron in milk. Animals given milk exclusively have anemia.

More and more one is forced to the conclusion that the only way to be well is to eat everything that is edible. But remember that the stomach is a small organ.

A few days ago the finished product was submitted to the minority, to make the most of—and by gosh!—it was not as high as they had expected—not as high as it was before.

So Chairman Smoot says, at any rate. To the untrained eye, the bill is a mere jumble of figures, significant nothing. Chairman Smoot, however, knows more about tariffs than anyone else in the world and what he says undoubtedly is right. Under the present (the old) tariff law, collections are about $515,000,000 a year.

Chairman Smoot says the house of representatives' proposed law would bring collections up to approximately $645,000,000, but the senate's schedule will stop in the neighborhood of $605,000,000.

In other words, the senate bill—if we get off that easily—will increase the cost of American's living only 60 millions annually; the house bill—if adopted just as the house passed it—would increase it 130 millions.

If the high tariff fixers deliberately thought up this scheme—this cut from 130 to only 90 millions—it was good tactics. Even a free trader must admit that.

Ninety millions, mentioned all by itself, sounds like a sizeable sum. Directly following a reference to 130 millions, it sounds much smaller—only 90 millions—think of that!—a mere bagatelle!

But my impression is that the senate busters bit of nearly 90 not so much as a matter of clever generalship, as because they were afraid it was all they could chew at one mouthful—that the upper house would choke on the 130 which the lower one was able to masticate with its better set of majority teeth.

It goes to prove that the senate has better table manners than the house representatives, anyway.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Chicken in Batter. Corn Pudding. Tomato and Cucumber Salad. Apple Pie. Cheese Coffee. This menu will serve four.

Today's Recipes

Chicken in Batter—Make a batter of two eggs, one-third cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper and enough flour to make a medium thick batter. Cut apart a young raw chicken and roll each piece in the batter. Fry in deep fat until tender and the crust is brown.

Baked Corn Pudding—Two cups corn, two beaten eggs, two tablespoons melted butter, one tablespoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt and two cups milk. Beat egg slightly; mix all together. Set dish in pan of water, bake until firm (about one-half hour) in a moderate oven. Do not overcook.

Tomato and Cucumber Salad—Slice cucumbers and tomatoes and serve with jellied mayonnaise made as follows: By soaking one teaspoon gelatin in two tablespoons cold water for ten minutes. Then dissolve it over hot water and beat into one cup of mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Sauce Tartare. To one pint of well-seasoned mayonnaise add one finely chopped shallot, one-quarter cup each finely chopped gherkins, olive and capers if desired, and two tablespoons finely chopped parsley. If a whipped cream sauce is desired, add one cup of whipped cream just before serving.

The Last of the Roast

A delicious way to use the last of the roast is to cut the scraps into small pieces. Add half as much coarsely cut cabbage, a sliced tomato, a sliced onion, and the remaining gravy. Add a little hot water, simmer until quite thick and everything is tender. Serve on a small platter with a border of cooked rice.

Jumpers. Frocks are again being shown. Patterned jersey is the cloth most usually used for the newer jumpers.

Diet and Health

When Young People Reduce

Mother—When young people are reducing, it is important for them to have their full quota of growth foods, so three glasses of milk, some eggs or a small piece of meat, and liberal amounts of fruits and vegetables should not be omitted. Candy, nuts and oils can be cut out entirely, and breads and cereals cut down markedly. If your daughter takes whole milk, she can cut her butter down to one pat a day, but if she takes skim milk she had better have some cream or more butter to make up for the lack of vitamin A in the skim milk. Or, if she wants to reduce the butter and cream, she can take daily a teaspoon of cod liver oil. It is much higher in the disease-resisting vitamin A than butter or cream, and one teaspoon counts but 35 calories. The exercises can usually be increased.

A slow reduction is advisable for the young because of growth demands. Their increase in height will automatically make them slimmer, even if there is but little loss in weight. It is considered better for young people under 21 to be slightly over the average weight, rather than underweight.

You may have our pamphlet on the subject of Reducing and Gaining weight by following column rules.

"I have a large cyst on the top of my head, about the size of an egg. Is it dangerous to have it removed? I have been darning my hair for years and I am wondering if that procedure might in any way be responsible for its growth? Could a cyst cause you to have a violent temper? I'm beginning to boast of my temper and I'm really ashamed of it, for it is nothing to brag about." MRS. D.

I never have heard of hair cysts forming cysts. Mrs. D. If they should contain harmful ingredients their effects are more apt to be felt generally, especially on the nervous system. I couldn't tell if your temper is caused by this or not. But any one who gets into a temper easily is unbalanced for some reason!

The cyst you have on your head is most likely a sebaceous cyst, known as a wen. These are not infrequently on the head, back and face. But you should see a physician, anyway, not only to know what it is but to have it removed.

The cause of wens is not known. The contents consist of the same material as is in blackheads—sebum—which is really the natural oil of the skin glands. It may be possible that one who is subject to cysts is born with a little abnormality in the skin which causes these formations. There may sometimes be but one and sometimes two or three.

Their removal is a simple matter, for they are encapsulated. A simple incision in the skin and a dissection out, including its sac, is the method most curative. (If the sac is left in, the cyst will grow again.) Wens are not considered dangerous to any degree, but they may continue to grow and be very inconvenient, and they certainly are not pretty to look at. They are usually devoid of hair, if they are on the scalp.

MRS. G.—We have a new pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders which answers your questions on sugar in the urine and gives a simple test for detecting its presence. See column rules for obtaining this.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Isn't there one such person as this letter describes in every business office, club and neighborhood? They are always the fly in the otherwise perfectly good ointment, the rotten apple in the barrel that spoils the whole lot. What can we do about them?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your good advice in the paper every evening and really that is the reason why I take the paper now. We have decided to put the question before you.

"We belong to a club simply for pastime, and not for gossip about our neighbors. But for Virginia, there is one old hen who belongs to this club, and every time we meet she has a long string to tell on someone, and she makes the game so tiresome. This gossiping isn't just about people she doesn't like. It is about her best friends, always of course, when they are not present.

"Of course we all know we get it when our backs are turned, but what can we do to stop her gossip? The most fun we have is when she is late, but just as soon as she gets in, the old story begins.

"She has four boys, ranging in age from six to 16, and they are always running over the neighbors' lawn destroying flowers, and it makes her so mad to tell her nicely to keep them off. Her own back yard is full of flowers, but she doesn't let them get in there. She never stays in the house. She is always in somebody's yard giving it to some of her neighbors.

"Now please tell us how we can dismiss that kind of a member without making her mad, for that would mean a lot more gossip."

"DISGUSTED."

There is always such a person in every neighborhood and club to take the joy out of life. Disgusted. Why we tolerate them is a mystery to me. They hurt everybody's feelings. They have no kindness in their hearts for anyone, but no one has the courage to tell them what despicable pests they are. Why is it? Why do we tolerate such folks? Is it because we are afraid of them? I think that must be it, for such people have sharp tongues and can usually cutlaid an ordinary person.

You can't get rid of them without hurting their feelings and making them mad. The more hateful they are to others the more sensitive they are about their own feelings. I don't know why, but it is so.

The only way you can rid yourself of her is to tell her outright that you don't want her, and I'm afraid no one would have the courage to do that. If someone would tell her exactly what they thought of her and of how life is in the otherwise perfectly good ointment, the rotten apple in the barrel that spoils the whole lot. What can we do about them?

The only other thing you can do is to out-talk her. Every time she starts gossiping about someone, change the subject. Act as if you haven't heard what she says and begin talking about something else. It will seem rude, I know, but no club member should be allowed to do this. She will have to talk to herself or quit.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your article on the life of a widow. I feel very sorry for her, for I have very nearly the same life but I always say it can't last forever. There will be a change some day.

"I am married seventeen and a half years. Every time I go to a movie and I don't drive the car just right, my husband gets angry and will not talk for a week. He would come home, eat his meals and either sit in a corner or go out. That was the beginning. Now if I ask him to do little jobs for me he gets angry.

I cannot tell or show him how I would like to have it done. He says he will not let anyone boss him. When he is alone he is alright, and with other people, but when I am there he sulks, now, for two weeks at a time. He is a good provider but no companion. I am thankful I have no children. I often think I can't stand it much longer. Sometimes I think I'll end it all."

"LEORA LOUISE." I funny how hard men try to win women and then, when won, treat them as they would not think of treating a dog, isn't it? And it's funny how women stick to their husbands. Why, for instance do you stay with yours? Of course you might lose the result of all your years of work with him if you left.

You have not been receiving the money you have earned all these years keeping house for him, and I suppose if you left he would get everything unless you could come to a money settlement. Perhaps you may, even, love him, in spite of his treatment. Women are like that. It seems to me a pity that you haven't children, because then you would have some one to keep you company.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

NO FUN FOR SOMEBODY

No sooner had Mrs. Walking-Stick introduced Peter to her uncle than she began to give her crackly chuckle. Her husband joined her. "What's the joke?" demanded Uncle Praying Mantis. "Let me in on it, quickly." He glared at Peter. "Ho, ho, hee, hee!" twittered the Walking-Sticks, and Mrs. Walking-Stick added:

"We call the boy friend although the first thing he did was to step on husband's head and nearly squash the breath out of him. What a time I had to make him take his foot off hubby!"

"Hm! That is a joke!" remarked Uncle Praying Mantis and burst out with another of his fierce "caw"s. "It's too bad I wasn't around to hug him. One hug of mine and he'd have taken himself off your husband's head in a hurry. Although what would have happened to him next I'll not tell you. Say, the boy looks fast and tasty!"

Peter moved several paces away.

from Uncle Praying Mantis. He didn't like the fellow at all, but Mrs. Walking-Stick twittered: "Ho, ho, hee, hee! You always were such a joker, Uncle! Her husband—kinder hearted and thinking of sparing Peter's feelings, hastily said:

"For shame, both of you! The poor boy didn't even see me and he didn't mean to hurt me and he said he was sorry. Let go-bys be go-bys. Wife, it was rude of you to bring up the subject again. As for you, Uncle, once you get to know our guest you'll be sure to like him. Come on down here so we can see you! We want to hear all about your trip and I want our new friend here to see what a fine fellow you are."

This bit of flattery pleased Uncle Praying Mantis. Somewhat as flew past Peter—and landed beneath the stem to which Mr. and Mrs. Walking-Stick had been clinging.

EAST END NEWS

MRS. JAMES HARRIS
Correspondent
Tel. 91-R

The Middle Run Baptist Church has selected the Rev. F. M. Liggins to fill its pulpit.

The Rev. Mr. Liggins needs no introduction as he is one of our home boys and Middle Run is his church home.

He left the state seven years ago for Denver, Colo., to take charge of a church in that city and served this church three years. The second year of his ministry there he was elected president of the Inter-Mountain States Convention, a convention made up of seven Western states, and became a member of the National Baptist Sunday School Publishing Board at the meeting of the National Baptist Convention in Los Angeles, Calif. He came to a church in Kansas City where he stayed only one year, being called to the Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Clarksburg, W. Va. He pastored there three years and was also clerk of his association. In the spring of 1928, he was a candidate for the West Virginia State Legislature, receiving a good number of votes, white and colored, but lost the nomination because the majority of colored voters were Democratic. He came with his family to this city last spring to take charge of other work in this state.

Come to hear him at Middle Run beginning Sunday, September 8.

Rev. Strawder Liggins and family attended the home-coming at Frankfort, Ross county, Ohio Sunday. Hundreds were present from all parts of the country. This home-coming celebration was begun twenty-five years ago, at the Libbins home. Program planned by Revs. Frank Strawder Liggins and Ollie White Bray. Rev. O. O. Jones was the speaker on that occasion.

Why, Mrs. Van! I can't believe it," she cried. "Mr. Van and Agnes Herford! Oh, how terrible! How simply awful."

Mrs. Van nodded, and dabbed at her chin-bla eyes with a damp blue handkerchief.

"It is awful," she agreed. "And you're sure it's Miss Herford's writing, aren't you?"

Chatty nodded, still managing to look flabbergasted.

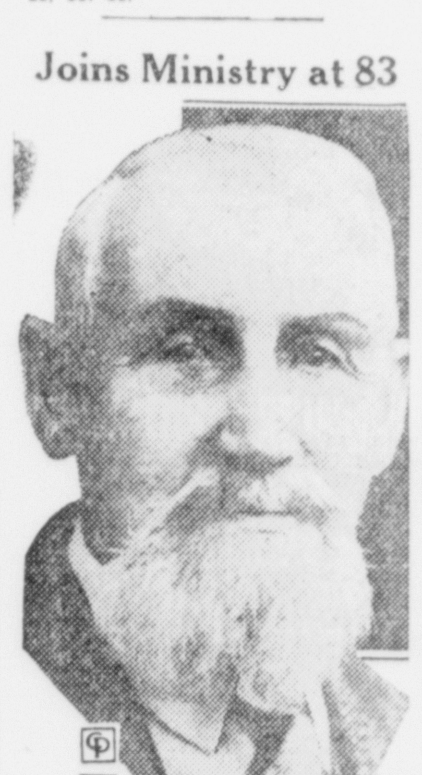

"I knew it was either hers or Miss Talcott's," Mrs. Van went on, "because the both work in Mr. Van's office—but it seemed to me that Miss Talcott was the type who'd run around with a married man if she got a chance, and that Miss Herford wasn't. She seems so quiet and good, doesn't she?"

"She's just two-faced," she declared. "She goes around acting as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth—but in her sneaky way she does quite a lot of vamping in the office!"

Mrs. Van wiped her wet blue eyes again. Her chin quivered, and her soft mouth drew down at the corners.

She looked exactly like a big, pink, helpless baby, and suddenly Chatty found it very easy to say the things that she had come there, meaning to say, that night.

"Mrs. Van," she began, "I want to tell you something I should have told to you when I first started to work for Mr. Van, but mother talked me out of it. That Herford girl is just a disappointed old maid, and because she can't get Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. She loses her job in a hat store because she talks too much.

Her mother, a widowed dress-maker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Lowell Van Nuys, an old friend. Through her Chatty gets a job in the files department of Mr. Van Nuys' bond house, down town. There she meets David Jordan, a young bond salesman, and falls in love with him.

Billie Langenau, who's in charge of the files, and her sister, Sara, come to live across the hall from the Chattertons. Billie gives a party for the office force, and that night David Jordan makes love to Chatty for the first time. After that they see much of each other, going around with Billie and George Mayhew, one of the bond salesmen, sometimes. Finally David comes to the flat and meets Mrs. Chatterton. But Chatty won't let him, her young brother, meet him, for she has found out that Pud and Ben Tomlinson, who owns the corner drug store, are bootlegging. Pud admits selling alcohol to Winnie Talcott, who works in Mr. Van Nuys' office, helping Agnes.

Chatty unearths some office scandal. She finds out that Billie Langenau has been married but never divorced, and that George Mayhew does not know this. Billie insists that since George isn't in love with her, or she with him, this doesn't matter. But when Chatty sees George with another girl, and tells Billie about it, she bursts into tears.

Sometimes Mr. Van Nuys and Agnes Herford, his secretary, go to lunch together. Chatty promises her mother never to speak of this to Mrs. "Van." But when she becomes jealous because Agnes is too friendly with Dave, she steals Agnes' diary from her desk and sends some of it to Mrs. "Van."

Enough to show Mrs. "Van" that Agnes is in love with her husband. Chatty leaves the torn diary in Dave's roadster. He returns it to Agnes' desk, and no one but himself knows that Chatty stole it. He scolds her for taking it and says he cannot understand her doing such a thing. That night Mrs. Van sends for Chatty, shows her the torn pages of the diary, and asks her whose handwriting is on them.

CHAPTER XIX

Chatty did a wonderful job of acting as she picked up the torn pages of the diary.

She looked at them as if she never had seen them before. Her eyes popped open with make-believe surprise. She frowned at Agnes' neat handwriting, and began to read the first entry aloud.

"April 15—Today Mr. V. and I had lunch together. Agnes had written, 'Afterward we picked out a present for his wife. Her birthday is tomorrow, and he bought her a pair of diamond cuff pins. It seems odd that I should help him choose a gift for her when I am so jealous of her.'"

Chatty had read it all three nights before in the kitchen of the Lipton Street flat.

But now she raised her eyebrows until they all but vanished under her yellow hair, and gave a little gasp.

"Why, Mrs. Van! I can't believe it!" she cried. "Mr. Van and Agnes Herford! Oh, how terrible! How simply awful."

Mrs. Van nodded, and dabbed at her chin-bla eyes with a damp blue handkerchief.

"It is awful," she agreed. "And you're sure it's Miss Herford's writing, aren't you?"

Chatty nodded, still managing to look flabbergasted.

"I knew it was either hers or Miss Talcott's," Mrs. Van went on, "because the both work in Mr. Van's office—but it seemed to me that Miss Talcott was the type who'd run around with a married man if she got a chance, and that Miss Herford wasn't. She seems so quiet and good, doesn't she?"

"She's just two-faced," she declared. "She goes around acting as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth—but in her sneaky way she does quite a lot of vamping in the office!"

Mrs. Van wiped her wet blue eyes again. Her chin quivered, and her soft mouth drew down at the corners.

She looked exactly like a big, pink, helpless baby, and suddenly Chatty found it very easy to say the things that she had come there, meaning to say, that night.

a man of her own she picks on her husband, and any other man in the office that she can get to look at her. There's one man, Dave Jordan, who's years younger than she is, and she's always trying to get him to take her out to lunch, too."

She stopped herself. This wasn't the time to talk about Dave Jordan and Agnes! This was her chance to talk about Agnes and Mr. Van, and Agnes' diary from her desk and sends some of it to Mrs. "Van."

Enough to show Mrs. "Van" that Agnes is in love with her husband. Chatty leaves the torn diary in Dave's roadster. He returns it to Agnes' desk, and no one but himself knows that Chatty stole it. ### SAFETY FIRST GOAL OF LARGEST PLANE; SAVES PILOT WORK

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—"Safety First"—this typically American slogan prompted the Dornier company to build the gigantic, 12-motored "Do X," the world's largest airplane, officials of the company told United Press.

"Do X" was designed and constructed by Dr. Claudius Dornier, it was declared, principally to demonstrate that safety in the air can be substantially increased, and secondarily to prove that airplanes can be made to pay for themselves. Asking "what is today the cause of most aviation accidents," Dornier officials listed them as follows:

"The pilots have too much to do. They are largely always overworked. They must steer the aircraft, keep an eye on a multitude of instruments and at the same time navigate the ship. Moreover, they are rarely protected against weather changes.

"The motors are almost always overstrained. They must run constantly under full power. Stopping them or repairing them in midair is hardly to be thought of.

"Gasoline and oil feedpipes and parts of the steering apparatus are often inaccessible. Hundreds of emergency landings today can be traced to difficulties arising in this connection. Such landings often result in serious accidents. Had all parts of the apparatus and the feedpipes been fully accessible, emergency landings would have been avoided in most of these cases.

"Fire forms a tragic chapter in the history of aviation. The majority of these fires have been due to gasoline leaking from tanks standing close to overheated motors."

Explaining how some, if not all, these drawbacks to safe flying have been overcome, the Dornier officials said:

"Aboard the airplane 'Do X' the pilot can devote all his attention solely to the task of piloting the craft. He need not be omnipotent or be a pilot, engineer, navigator and commander all in one. The technical work will be handled by an engineer, who will be assisted by a number of specialists. The commander will be just that; he will command the ship and the crew, determine the course to be followed and so forth. No one will be overworked.

"Nor will the motors be overtaxed. They have sufficient surplus power to make it possible to reduce their power by 40 per cent immediately after the start. Heretofore airplanes have at most had only three or four motors; the 'Do X' has twelve; all independent of one another. Many times when one motor fails the airplane must make a forced landing or at least continue flying under greatly reduced power. Should one engine aboard the 'Do X' fail it would lose only one-twelfth of its motive power. The craft can continue flying with three or four motors out of commission.

"Up until now hidden parts on airplanes have been almost inaccessible. As for the 'Do X' provisions have been made to develop to the utmost facilities for repairing the motors and equipment. The possibility of making repairs does not alone depend on accessibility, but also on the ability to disconnect the damaged parts without interrupting the flight of the airplane.

"The danger of fire has been met by placing the fuel tanks as far as possible from the motors. They are located in the deepest section of the body of the ship (the twelve engines are located on top). This section is made up of specially constructed rooms."

FIREMEN LABOR ON LABOR DAY

FIREMEN found business unusually brisk Labor Day morning.

The fire department was summoned at 10:40 a. m. to a junk yard at the end of S. Collier St., when an old touring car caught fire. The machine was worthless and the damage was negligible.

A few minutes after the trucks had returned to the engine house two more alarms were turned in simultaneously.

Fire Chief William Hanifan dispatched the new pumper and the ladder truck to extinguish a grass fire off Thornhill Ave., and the old pumper unit made a run to "Lovers Lane" off Hill St., to put out another small grass fire, caused by burning trash.

The three fires boosted the total number of alarms answered by firemen this year to forty-five.

SHOW BOAT REVIVES OLD RIVER MELODRAMA FOR RADIO FANS

HANK SIMMONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—"By what right have you to tell me I can't take this gal to Noo Yawk with me?"

(Hisses and boos.)

"By the Godd given right that she has promised to be MY WIFE."

(Hurrah! Atta boy!)

Melodrama Revived

And, thus, with the coming of Hank Simmons' Show Boat to the air a year ago, the real old-time river melodrama—priceless thing of laughter and tears—is with us again.

One of the first childhood memories of this writer is of the enchanting "toot-tooten, toot-tooten" of the steam calliope, announcing the show boat's spicing arrival at a little southern Ohio river town—Sciotoville.

And of a kind old lady who smiled a toothless smile and said: "Run, git me a loaf of bread. Little gal, and I'll give ya a nickel fer to go set on the merry-go-round."

Then of sneaking down to the river, deliciously thrilled and scared because papa was a parson and had taught us to believe all things theatrical were of a very horny old satan with long forks and plenty of stove wood in his back yard.

Macy in real life—has given the old river show boat owner an uncanny natural river twang. Harry C. Browne, brother of Brad Browne of the "Nit Wits" is that big strong man from the wide open spaces who always saves poor, harassed little Maybelle in the nick of time. He writes the material, too.

Real Acting
Believe it or not, we sat in the front of the "Mike" while "Maybelle"—Elsie May Gordon—did her mellerdrammer a few nights ago in "Clouds and Sunshine," and she really truly cried. It was at that heart-throbbing spot where her crook husband, whom she believed dead, came back and threatened to tear her from her lovely parson fiancé. Tears—real and salty. Maybelle completely forgot herself.

The setting of the show boat in the studio is no doubt one of the most interesting to be found. It is one of the few where visitors are welcome and urged to come again. The young men and boys are placed on a platform and told they are the rowdy peanut gallery, and that they must stomp and roar with abandon.

Below are the ladies and older men and a few children. Harry Browne, a few minutes before the "curtain" gives a short rehearsal for the benefit of those who are newcomers.

On placards are written "Hiss and boo"; "Laughter"; "Hearty Laughter"; "Cheer and hand clapping."

Thus the crowd is informed when to hiss the villain and glad-hand the hero and heroine. Often there are nearly a hundred people to lend that natural crowd atmosphere you hear when you tune in on Hank and his river family.

Records Generally Used
Phonograph records are used by the studios now for the crowd-gone-wild atmosphere. They are specially constructed records, sounding as though they might have been made at the world series or a prize fight.

Don't you folks who tune in on Hank's show boat miss the calliope? That is all it needs to make it perfect. A rickety old calliope playing:

"Wait till the sun shines Nellie And the clouds go drifting by."

Herebefore airplanes have at most had only three or four motors; the 'Do X' has twelve; all independent of one another. Many times when one motor fails the airplane must make a forced landing or at least continue flying under greatly reduced power. Should one engine aboard the 'Do X' fail it would lose only one-twelfth of its motive power. The craft can continue flying with three or four motors out of commission.

"Up until now hidden parts on airplanes have been almost inaccessible. As for the 'Do X' provisions have been made to develop to the utmost facilities for repairing the motors and equipment. The possibility of making repairs does not alone depend on accessibility, but also on the ability to disconnect the damaged parts without interrupting the flight of the airplane.

"The danger of fire has been met by placing the fuel tanks as far as possible from the motors. They are located in the deepest section of the body of the ship (the twelve engines are located on top.) This section is made up of specially constructed rooms."

FIREMEN LABOR ON LABOR DAY

FIREMEN found business unusually brisk Labor Day morning.

The fire department was summoned at 10:40 a. m. to a junk yard at the end of S. Collier St., when an old touring car caught fire. The machine was worthless and the damage was negligible.

A few minutes after the trucks had returned to the engine house two more alarms were turned in simultaneously. Fire Chief William Hanfman dispatched the new pumper and the ladder truck to extinguish a grass fire off Thornhill Ave., and the old pumper unit made a run to "Lovers Lane" off Hill St., to put out another small grass fire, caused by burning trash.

The three fires boosted the total number of alarms answered by firemen this year to forty-five.

SHOW BOAT REVIVES OLD RIVER MELODRAMA FOR RADIO FANS

HANK SIMMONS

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—"By what right have you to tell me I can't take this gal to New York with me?" (Hisses and boos.)

"By the Godgiven right that she has promised to be MY WIFE." (Hurrah! Atta boy!)

Melodrama Revived

And, thus, with the coming of Hank Simmons' Show Boat to the air a year ago, the real old-time river melodrama—priceless thing of laughter and tears—is with us again.

One of the first childhood memories of this writer is of the enchanting "toot-tooten, toot-tooten" of the steam calliope, announcing the show boat's spring arrival at a little southern Ohio river town—Sciotoville.

And of a kind old lady who smiled a toothless smile and said: "Run, git me a loaf of bread, little gal, and I'll give ye a nickel fer to go set on the merry-go-round."

Then of sneaking down to the river, deliciously thrilled and scared because papa was a parson and had taught us to believe all things theatrical were of a very horny old satan with long forks and plenty of stove wood in his back yard.

Gas HEATING for the home with KIDDIES

Infants and children are especially susceptible to changes in temperature, and so homes blessed by their presence should be kept at an even temperature throughout the cold seasons.

A Gas Burning Furnace
—is the best possible way to accomplish this—for with gas, and a thermostat heat regulator, the gas is turned down automatically at a certain temperature (any temperature you desire) and as the weather becomes warmer or colder, it keeps the home at an even temperature.

Macy in real life—has given the old river show boat owner an uncannily natural river twang. Harry C. Browne, brother of Brad Browne of the "Nit Wits" is that big strong man from the wide open spaces who always saves poor, harassed little Maybelle in the nick of time. He writes the material, too.

Real Acting
Believe it or not, we sat in the front of the "Mike" while "Maybelle"—Elsie May Gordon—did her mellerdrammer a few nights ago in "Clouds and Sunshine," and she really truly cried. It was at that heart-throbbing spot where her crook husband, whom she believed dead, came back and threatened to tear her from her lovely parson fiancé. Tears—real and salty. Maybelle completely forgot herself.

The setting of the show boat in the studio is no doubt one of the most interesting to be found. It is one of the few where visitors are welcome and urged to come again. The young men and boys are placed on a platform and told they are the rowdy peanut gallery, and that they must stomp and roar with abandon.

Below are the ladies and older men and a few children. Harry Browne, a few minutes before the "curtain," gives a short rehearsal for the benefit of those who are newcomers.

On placards are written "Hiss and boo"; "Laughter"; "Hearty Laughter"; "Cheer and hand clapping."

Thus the crowd is informed when to hiss the villain and glad-hand the hero and heroine. Often there are nearly a hundred people to lend that natural crowd atmosphere you hear when you tune in on Hank and his river family.

Records Generally Used

Photograph records are used by the studios now for the crowd-gone-wild atmosphere. They are specially constructed records, sounding as though they might have been made at the world series or a prize fight.

Don't you folks who tune in on Hank's show boat miss the calliope! That is all it needs to make it perfect. A rickety old calliope playing:

"Wait till the sun shines Nellie And the clouds go drifting by."
